

Paint Night at The Historic Distillery District

"It looks like The Historic Distillery District will not be satisfied with hibernating its way through early 2018 and neither should you. Toronto is getting a massive month and a half long light festival in January at the Distillery District. From January 19 to March 11, the Toronto Light Festival will be taking over the historic area and filling it with light."

Description:

As a way to be part of the Toronto Light Festival, you are welcome to join an exciting abstract painting workshop with no painting experience required. Boldness, playfulness and experimentation will be encouraged to make the best of this creative journey. You will discover the power of colour using different techniques along the layering process. Working from an image as a source of inspiration, you will be guided in selecting interesting compositions, colour mixing and painting application with a variety of tools to achieve textural effects. From bold strokes to soft touches, from contrasting resolutions to smooth passages... The journey will be experimental and individual.

All materials will be provided. Book now as spaces are limited.

Paint Night at The Historic Distillery District

Come to The Historic Distillery District after a busy day for an inspiring painting experience while enjoying the amenities of an artist's studio!

Description:

This art workshop is designed with the purpose of gathering people interested in sharing a relaxed, fun and exciting painting night, listening to good music and letting your creativity flow

Working from a seascape photograph, you will be guided in a step-by-step demonstration of the whole painting process, from colour mixing to painting techniques. Short, thick strokes of paint will be used to quickly capture the essence of the subject using brushes and palette knives, rather than its details.

You will be surprised at what you can achieve!

All materials will be provided. Book now as spaces are limited.
